

BARBER COLLEGE NOW VARSITY FACULTY

Affiliation of Moler Tonsorial Institution is Consummated.

UNIVERSITY MEN GET POSITIONS

MM. St. Elme de Champoo and Eugene Massage Made Professors.

Negotiations which have been under way for several months past were completed last night, affiliating the Moler Barber College with the University of Toronto. The tonsorial academy is now a full-fledged member of the sisterhood of colleges, and the degree of B.T.A. (Bachelor of Tonsorial Art) will henceforward be granted by the University senate.

Another step taken last night was a complete agreement on the personnel of the members of the staff in the new faculty. With only one or two exceptions the posts were awarded to University College men.

Decorations will be commenced at once near the site of the proposed School of Domestic Science and the Barbarous Arts. The edifice is to be after the Van Dyke style of architecture, with a soapstone front and hone sills to the windows.

Considerable surprise was occasioned in certain circles when it was announced that the deanship of the college goes to Prof. St. Elme de Champoo.

Faculty Named

The members of the staff are as follows:

Dean—M. St. Elme de Champoo
Bursar—H. E. Coyne.
Registrar—Frank Barber.
Department of Extortion—Professor P. G. Price.
Demonstrators—H. E. Coyne and W. A. Pac (S.P.S.)
Department of Facial Pubescence—Professor Gordon L. Shaver.
Demonstrators—J. A. Baird (S.P.S.) and C. S. Lather (S.P.S.)
Class assistant—J. A. Stirrett.
Department of Blemishes and Beautifiers—Professor W. H. Mole.
Demonstrator—R. Skinner.
Department of Tonics and Restorers—Professor G. Hare.
Department of Disinfectants—Professor Formal de Hyde.
Department of Capillotomy—Professor Frank Barber.
Demonstrator, J. Sheard.
Department of Massaging—Professor Eugene Massage (Vic).
Assistant Professor, Kneader.
Lectures in first aids to the injured have been arranged for and will be taken with the faculty of medicine.

TO TESTIFY IN THAW'S BEHALF

Toronto Chorus Girl Expert is Needed in New York.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31 — (Special) —Martin Littleton, counsel for Harry K. Thaw announced to-day that the defence would call Mr. G. T. Davidson, of The University of Toronto, the well-known specialist on chorus girls as a witness. Mr. Davidson will give evidence as to the habits of the creatures, of whom he has made a life study. The sub-poena will be issued to-morrow.

SPECTACULAR CEREMONY ATTENDS INAUGURAL SESSION OF PARLIAMENT

JOURNALIST IS VICTIM OF THUG

Unknown Ruffian Assaults J. A. Stirrett—Editor Pluckily Rejects Poem.

J. T. Stirrett, the editor of "Varsity," was the victim of a dastardly outrage late last night.

While peacefully strolling on the campus in front of University College, endeavoring to manufacture the necessary epigrams for his next editorial, Mr. Stirrett was suddenly accosted by a masked man. Looking round the editor found himself gazing down the barrel of a six stanzaed ballad of heavy calibre.

Mr. Stirrett kept his nerve and asked his assailant what he wished.

"Give me five columns of space in your next issue, or your life," growled the villain. True to his tenets, Mr. Stirrett refused, whereupon the ruffian with a mad shriek discharged two stanzas of the ballad at the editor's head.

Though severely wounded, Mr. Stirrett endeavored to make his escape. He had, however, barely staggered three paces, when his assailant discharged the third stanza. It took effect and Mr. Stirrett fell unconscious on the campus.

Slugged With Epic

Seeing him helpless at his feet, the ruffian treated the unfortunate man with the greatest brutality. He discharged the remaining three stanzas of the ballad into Mr. Stirrett's body, and endeavored to complete his deadly work by striking the editor with an epic which he had concealed upon his person. Then hearing approaching footsteps he fled.

Mr. Stirrett was found lying unconscious by W. P. Lambert, his personality editor, and was conveyed to the Varsity Office. He was in a precarious condition, but restoratives in the shape of a report of a meeting of the Y.M.C.A. having been applied, he recovered, and is now doing well. It is thought that Mr. Stirrett's assailant was a long-haired aper of genius. A posse, headed by Mr. J. R. McDonald, is on the track of the villain.

DEBATERS ARGUE KNOTTY PROBLEM

Messrs Carlyle and Robertson to Lead at "Talk" Club.

The Talk for Talk's Sake Club will meet to-morrow evening in the Dining Hall. The topic for debate is—"Resolved, that a Homesick Fish is also Seasick." J. A. Carlyle will lead the affirmative and W. G. Robertson the negative.

WEATHER

Hotter than Tophet this evening with striking coldnesses to-morrow morning. Certain persons will feel hot for several days.

PLOT TO STORM HOUSE LAID BARE

Disgruntled at Lack of Representation—Suffragettes Plan Outrage

Consternation was created at the meeting of the Cabinet yesterday by the disclosure of a deep laid plot on the part of the University women suffragists, to break up the proceedings of the house to-day.

The existence of the plot was revealed by a lady of high position whose name has not been made public, but whose identity may be shrewdly guessed. It appears that the cause of the dissatisfaction on the part of the women is the refusal of the Government to recognize the precedent established last year and to allow them representation.

It is reported that secret meetings have been held at Queen's Hall, at which inflammatory speeches were made by women agitators and a plot hatched.

It was first planned to storm the legislative chamber with umbrellas, hat pins and bombs of toilet powder. As this, however, would have occasioned great loss of life among those present at the session, and as many of the ladies knew that those near and dear to them would be present at the opening, such extreme measures did not meet with favor from all the conspirators.

More peaceful counsel therefore prevailed. It was decided that a band of the most dangerous of the agitators should occupy front seats in the public galleries, from which, on the opening of the first session, and that from this point of vantage, they should on the opening of the session, have a volley of glances and smiles. By this means it was hoped that the members would be demoralized and the business of the government completely suspended.

On the revelation of the plot stringent preventive measures

YOUTH ESCAPES FINE; DROPS DEAD

Leniency of Librarian Proves Fatal to Unknown Student.

"I should have liked to live now, but it is too late."

With these words upon his lips, the last he ever uttered, an unknown youth dropped dead at the library counter a few minutes after ten o'clock this morning. Death was due to the fact the young man was not fined for a book returned five minutes over time.

At exactly four minutes after ten the student was seen standing at the counter with a book tightly clasped to his breast. He was pale and nervous, and the sharp intake of his breath could be heard several yards away. In his right hand he held a quarter. He seemed to have a premonition of his fate when the official smiled genially at him and reached for the book. The unhappy man started in astonishment when his book was returned to the shelf without the customary—

"You'll have to see—"

The words were not forthcoming and with a muffled cry the youth dropped to the floor.

Late this afternoon he had not been identified.

were at once taken by the Cabinet. Superintendent Campbell, of the Secret Police, was notified, and by him the headle was ordered to dispose himself round Queen's Hall and to keep a close watch on all proceedings there.

The band of agitators will moreover be surrounded at the session by such a body of Government supporters, interspersed with plain clothes men, as to make the overpowering of the malcontents an easy matter, should they attempt to put their nefarious designs into execution.

NEW MINISTERS MAKE OFFICIAL BOW

Speech From Throne Reviews Year of Remarkable Prosperity.

CROWDS GATHER FOR FUNCTION

Enveloped in the utmost pomp and ceremony the first session of the house under the Davidson regime opened yesterday afternoon. Not a single mishap occurred to mar the proceedings. Thousands thronged the grounds and the driveway was lined with handsome equipages containing the flower of the nation as the troopers of the vice regal body-guard galloped up to take their places at the entrance. After amid came a band of music which were seated Lieutenant Governor Oh Lord Robinette, Premier Davidson, Hon. Jimbo Gilchrist, and Speaker Lazenby. In their train were the earriages of the cabinet ministers and private members.

His Honor read the speech from the throne amid huzzas, and the ceremonial of opening was duly completed.

Cabinet Ministers

Prominent on the Government benches were—Go to Davidson, P.D.Q.; P.O.O.L.; Premier and Minister of Upper Gallery (Obabika Lake).

Almost Jagged Maekenzie, M.U.D.; S.P.L.A.S.H. (Tim Healy's).

Hon. Heavy Below Johnston, N.O.X.; R.I.P.; Minister of Abattoirs and Wieners. (Hogenheimer's Sausage Works).

Hon. Hydrant Hater Turner, T.F.D.; S.L.O.G.; Minister of Limericks and Soft Soap. (Alkali Slough).

Hon. Just Monkey Around Paterson, R.A.G.S.; B.O.N.E.S.; Minister of High Finance and Midnight Oil. (Mt. Zion).

Hon. Teddybear Roosevelt Harrison, R.A.C.E.; Minister of Choruses and Heiresses. (Suicide Lane).

Rhinoceros-footed Thompson, B.I.G.; F. E. E. T. (Starvation Hollow).

Hon. Cork Whiskey Never (?) Inwood, P.A.T.; B.O.O.Z.E.; Minister of Cubets and Cascarets. (McGillivuddy Reeks).

Another Bum Taylor, P.A.W.N. (York Street).

Grand Ethiopian Huggins Edmunds, M.Y.; B.A.B.Y. (Trinidad).

On Opposition Benches

In the front row of the Opposition were to be seen:

Hon. Jimbo Gilchrist, A.L.L. I.N.N.; X.N.N. Leader of Opposition. (Frightnabruich).

Everlastingly Rubbing McLean, T.U.R.N.I.P.S. (Jenkins Corners).

Heart Breaker Duckworth, S.T.U.N.G. (Lovers' Lane).

Rosewood Ambulance Humphries, S.T.I.F.F. (Potter's Field).

Jagged Whiskers Stephens, H.O.R.S.E.; G.U.F.P. (Punch Misery.)

CABINET PLANS SWEEPING REFORM

Program for Session Contains Many Drastic Measures.

TO PURCHASE THE GAYETY

Government Proposes to Salve Wound Caused by Star Expulsion.

Ten proposed sweeping measures, and appropriations to the amount of several million dollars are included in the task to which the Government has set itself in the session formally opened yesterday.

The speech from the throne reviews a prosperous year and forecasts another season of bounty. Chief interest, however, lies in the proposed legislation announced by the cabinet, and it is against this that the Opposition will mass its guns at to-day's sitting of the house. A battle royal is expected.

The programme of the Government for the session as presented in the Gazette is as follows:

A measure to specially import English nurses, bibs and feeding bottles to enable the Wycliffe men to develop into strong, healthy children.

A measure to create a chair of feminine infatuation in the first year with Gordon L. Shaver as head of the department.

To Protect Operator

A measure to have Supt. Cameron's fence brought up and placed above the telephone operator's partition.

A measure to provide a hole in the top of Wycliffe Convocation Hall, as a precautionary measure during the coming oratory contest.

A measure to appoint a commission consisting of C. E. Silcox, Angus Dewar, and Hugh McKenna, to interview the authorities to request a re-establishment of the Cher Howell license.

A measure to amend the pool room regulations that freshmen may play with classmen at less expense.

A measure to force D. Dick to visit Professor Snowball and have his shoes shined.

A measure to appoint a commission which will wait on the Toronto Railway Company and ask that limited tickets may be used at 4.50, and thus enable Prof. Vandersmissen to put in his fare when he gets on the car instead of waiting until the car reaches Sherbourne Street and five o'clock at the same time.

A measure to appoint a commission with powers to inquire into the matter of Hindmarsh dining at Queen's Hall.

To Restrict Marriages

A measure to stop the tendency of Queen's Hall girls to marry farmers.

Appropriations will be voted as follows:

To purchase the Gayety Theatre for the exclusive use of Victoria men as a salve to their wounded feelings since the Star has refused them admittance; and to install Father Lazenby as supervisor.

To provide a sausage machine for the dining hall as a means of getting rid of educated German fox terriers.

To provide proper ballet dresses for the faculty of education girls under Prof. Williams' instruction.

To provide W.C.T.U. membership fees for T. T. Silcox for so heroically and firmly expressing his objection to the ginger beer at the graduating dinner.

To provide a baby carriage for Billy Williams.

To provide Lambert and Stirrett with 23 cents that they may entertain themselves.

EPOCH MAKING
JOURNALISM

The present is a time of epoch making changes in the history of journalism. Following the announcement of the sale of the London "Times," regarded for a century past as the leading newspaper of Europe, comes the change in the management of "Varsity," its equally great and influential Canadian contemporary.

In each case the change is fraught with the deepest significance. The London "Times" has for the last ten years successfully withstood the modern movements in the realm of newspaper work, and has remained a model of the journalistic ideals of the past,—staid, solemn, ponderous. The frivolities in which the modern newspaper delights have never found a place within its formidable columns.

The fall of this stronghold of conservatism and retrogression has occasioned the greatest regret among those to whom the slowness and ponderosity of the past are dearer than the rush and shallowness of the present. To these it will give the greatest satisfaction to learn that what ground has been lost in England, has been gained in Canada.

The "Varsity," which under the last six editors had come under the influence of the modern movement in journalism, has been rescued for retrogression by the present occupant of the editorial chair.

In the past the persistent levity, the frequent indecorum of "Varsity" has often outraged the sensibilities of its grave and sober readers; as witness the scandals of Editor Barber's time. It's chief object has been to amuse.

The new editor has changed all this. Following the policy of the "Times," no suspicion of frivolity, of trifling or of original wit will be permitted to contaminate its columns. Moreover, the scope of the paper will be much enlarged. In the past editors have seen fit to confine themselves to the discussion of matters concerning the University only. In the future subjects of a far wider interest will be dealt with.

For the better instruction of the readers, special writers have been engaged to contribute articles on national questions and a forecast of what may be expected has already been given by the appearance of strikingly original dissertations on Oriental Immigration and the on Canadian Spirit.

A system of newsgathering has furthermore been perfected which will ensure the appearance of nothing but news, well attested and seasoned for from two months to a week. The editor has also given notice that one column is in future to be regarded as the limit for all articles,—this rule of course not applying to editorials.

In fine, the new management is to be congratulated on having taken so firm a stand against modern degenerate tendencies, having redeemed to Canada a paper which shall be representative of all that is staid and behind-hand in journalism,—of the ideals of the newspapers of the villages and small towns of Ontario.

In a recent History Lecture, Professor Kylie remarked that it seemed perfectly natural for James I. to step into the shoes of Elizabeth. We would like to ask in the columns of this paper, what are Mr. Kylie's grounds for such a suspicion?

SCENE — UNION POOL ROOM — TIME, THE OTHER DAY.
Freshman Coyne to Freshman Nott — "What did you do when you went home last summer?"
Nott — "I apologised."

LIMERICK CONTEST

To-day we are able to announce the result of our last Limerick competition. The first prize goes Mr. Hocking of Knox College. Mr. Hocking is made richer by the sum of thirty-two cents by a clever use of his poetic ability. Here is the Limerick:

There was a young student named Brown;
The gayest young sport in the town.
The policeman allege
He was found in a hedge
But we think that is only a myth.

Mr. Hocking supplied the last line which hits off the situation admirably. Unfortunately he forgot that the name of the student was Brown and made his line rhyme with Smith, but we consider that such a slight error did not detract from the merit of his contribution.

The second prize of twenty-eight cents goes to Mr. E. Moshier of Sarnia, who submitted the following line.

Mr. Brown shot the thirteen ball down.

What Mr. Brown did to the thirteen ball has nothing to do with his being found in a hedge, but that is only the result of Mr. Moshier's addiction to pool and should not, we think, be used against him. His line has a perfect number of feet and down rhymes perfectly with Brown and town. As his was the only line submitted having these qualifications, we decided to give him the prize.

Watch for the announcement of our next Limerick in next year's issue.

COMMITTEE MEN
TAKE FIRST
HYMN

First Entry Made in University Hymnal — Is Sublime Anthem.

Representing the liberal element, W. M. Johnson, at a meeting of the University Hymnal Commission, last night won a signal victory in securing a place in the new anthology for Turner's sublime anthem, "Oh, Hindmarsh." He was bitterly opposed by H. McCullough, P. H. A. T. Forsythe and Jacob Safana on the grounds that their finer feelings were hurt. Mr. Safana went to the length of saying that he would not attend prayers if the hymn were admitted. The result of the vote is that No. 1 in the new hymnal will be as follows:

OH, HINDMARSH!
(Air, Dooley)

Oh! Hindmarsh is an awful length of animated meat,
His hat protrudes a mile or so
Above his ample feet.
Perhaps that is the reason that wherever Harry strays,
The maidens sing this foolish song
In the succeeding days:

'Tis Mr. Hindmarsh, 'tis Harry Hindmarsh.
His little smile is surely meant for me.
The dreadful cusser, the awful
fusser,
Is Mr. Harry Hindmarsh, U.
of T.

Oh! Harry went to see a maid at Queen's Park, number seven,
And when he'd stayed a little while,
He thought he was in heaven.
The maiden she said, "Stay for tea."
Said he, "Thanks for the bid,
Begosh I'll stay although you say
Nobody ever did."

'Twas Mr. Hindmarsh, 'twas
Mr. Hindmarsh.
He's got more nerve than either
you or me.
The naughty sinner, he stayed for dinner,
Did Mr. Harry Hindmarsh, U.
of T.

The Social Whirl

Miss Harriet Turner,
Editrix.

Society was all agog at the capital last night, when Governor-General O. Lord Robinette made his maiden appearance as official representative of King Falconer I. The ball was held at East Hall, the rare old historic abode of many successive Governors-General. Never was seen such an array of the beauty and wit of the Dominion.

The ball sets a mark of excellence that will tax the resources of Canada's most famous society leaders to equal.

Many blushing debutantes gladdened the eyes of the city's smart bachelors and the wives of members made proud the hearts of their nervous husbands. Everyone danced; indeed, the beautiful music of Huggins' Orchestra made one wish to dance forever and everywhere.

Oh Lord Robinette and Lady Bug Robinette received. The Governor-General wore the uniform of a street car conductor and the Governoress-General looked lovely in a pink chiffon overcoat.

Mrs. Curleigh Davidson wore an Alexandra dress of Organdy trimmed with Burgundy, with pink megaphone insertions on the inside. Her eldest daughter, Miss Adelescent Davidson, was "chic" in a Grand Opera cloak of Duke's mixture. The wife of our genial minister of Abattoirs and Weiners, Mrs. H. B. Johnston, appeared in a ravishing dress of "esprit de corps," with yellow rose leaves in bas-relief on the bodice.

Mrs. Hydrant Hater Turner presented a sort of a general appearance which became her exceedingly. The bride of the Minister of High Finance and Midnight Oil, Mrs. Rachael Paterson (nee Trevelonatsky), appeared in a diamond necklace and a cut glass tiara. Hon. Mr. Paterson was the recipient of a deluge of congratulations from his many friends. Mrs. Cork W. N. Inwood had one of the most elaborate dresses of the evening. She wore Louis Imatoze Wools, a Louis Riel hat, and Louis Burns stockings, surmounted by a leopard skin automobile veil and a dog-daisy tattoo mark on her left cheek.

It was noticed that Hon. Mr. Inwood wore a life size miniature of Paul Kruger as a fob. The wife of the Hon. L. R. Harrison looked exquisitely beautiful in a pleated insertiou with shirred pate-de-foie-gras on the yoke. She also wore a unique jumper and carried a hand-made umbrella. Mrs. Jimbo Gilehrst, the wife of the popular leader of the opposition had on a delightful costume of half shot silk.

Mrs. J. W. Lunney will not receive Mr. J. W. Lunney any more this week.

Mrs. Mashler of Brockville, is the guest of Mrs. Colonel Pratt at the "Union."

Mr. Walter N. Sage will probably take a cruise around the swimming tank in the course of a few weeks.

Mr. A. J. McCalla took a short trip to Weston last week.

Mrs. H. C. Hindmarsh will give a small "Bridge" next Saturday.

Mrs. E. F. Rancy will pose in the library next Thursday.

The Alexandra is becoming quite a society theatre. Among those present at a little party on Monday night were Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Moyer, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Carlyle, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Curran, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Cruikshank. Mr. Frank Park, Irvine McCalla and a few other members of a stag party, occupied the boxes.

HEART TO HEART TALKS

By
LAURA E. MCSILLY

Yes, Heloise, your idea about appropriate dress material is a good one. I would suggest that you mitigate the rigors of the weather by wearing Melton cloth in the winter. In the hot summer days you might wear frieze.

"Gallant" writes that having taken a lady friend skating to Grenadier Pond, on taking off her shoes, preparatory to putting on her skating boots, he disclosed a large hole in the toe of her stockings. What should he have done?—My dear Gallant, only one course of action was open to you. You should of course have offered to lend the lady your own stockings. We trust you did so.

Household Science.—A becoming gown for use in the chemical laboratory can be made from an ordinary gunny sack. Fitted with a yoke front and applique trimmings, and with a lace fichu round the hem such a gown has a really charming effect. It has the great advantage of showing no stains and of being almost impervious to acids.

Worried.—You say that on bidding you good-night at your gate your escort kissed you on the cheek. What should you have done? You surprise us Worried. Why, kissed him back, of course.

Anxious.—We can recommend you no cosmetic for your freckles, such applications are of little use. The only sure remedy is a thorough treatment with sand paper. If your freckles do not yield to this try holy stone and a wire scrubbing brush. This method is warranted to remove the very worst freckles.

Fluffy writes asking as to the propriety of making a collection of souvenirs of her gentleman friends. By all means make such a collection, Fluffy. And moreover, be original. Don't confine yourself to class and fraternity pins. A collar or a necktie makes a nice wall decoration. A pair of boots is even better. Use your own ingenuity, dear Fluffy.

It is guaranteed an infallible remedy for falling off at prayers; low spirituality, backsliding, giddiness, insomnia, and all troubles of the throat and lungs. Accept no substitutes. NOTED AUTHOR IS CRITICALLY ILL

S. C. Ribbler Sick as Result of Freeze-Out in Veracity Office.

As a result of visiting the Veracity office without an overcoat S. C. Ribbler, the well-known humorous writer, is ill at his home suffering from an acute attack of pneumonia.

Mr. Ribbler was quite well on Tuesday and left his house with the remark that he intended to submit an article for publication. He spent several minutes in the office trying in vain to convince the editor that a humorous poem did not need to be secured by affidavits. The few moments, however, spent in the chilly environment did their work.

Mr. Ribbler was found late Tuesday evening walking aimlessly about the streets and was taken to his home. In his delirious mutterings he kept on repeating:

"All these years writing funny stuff. All these years. And some people write funnier stuff than I do. And they don't know it."

His condition is critical.

CURRELLI MAKES FIND IN TOMB

Famous Toronto Egyptologist Unearths Ancient Papyrus.

LONDON, Jan. 31. Word has been received here from Cairo of a wonderful discovery made by Professor Currelli, who is now engaged in Egypt in archaeological research for the University of Toronto. Professor Currelli has brought to light a papyrus, the finding of which is looked upon by archaeologists as an event in importance second only to the discovery of the Rosetta Stone. The papyrus was found in a tomb of Mau-Rees Uht-On, a king of the XII. Dynasty. Translated it reads as follows:

"Mau-Rees Uht-On, son of Ra, beloved of Osiris and Isis, reigned in the land of Khem and wore the crowns of the Upper and Lower land. And there was a certain youth of the King's Household, by name G'il-il-And, and this G'il-il-And was desirous of knowledge and sought after such things as the priests do know, concerning mathematics, and all that appertaineth thereto. Or at least such as he could with comfort come by. Now G'il-il-And feasted not with them of the King's household, but he ate in the hall of one Timiell. And this Timiell had a certain handmaiden, a hashlinger. Fair was she as the lotos blossom on the bosom of the Nile.

And G'il-il-And looked upon her and Mother Hathor moved his heart, so that she seemed to him exceeding fair. And it came to pass that G'il-il-And and the handmaiden conversed oft together. Yea, they masticated the cloth, and he became as it were a sweetness upon her. Now certain youths of the King's Household, companions of G'il-il-And, marked the thing, how that G'il-il-And and the hashlinger consorted together. And these were ribald youths, sons of Pes, an offence to the gods. Then they placed their heads, the one over against the other, and said:

"Let us do thus and thus, and make a pitfall for this G'il-il-And so that he shall fall therein. And he shall become as a donkey the son of a she ass. Then took they papyrus and wrote thereon as it had been an order from King Mau-Rees Uht-On, saying: 'We have heard how that thou consorted with a handmaiden, a hashlinger, in the hall of one Timiell, and we fear that she will lead thy feet in ways they should not tread. Wherefore come thou to us that we may chastise thee, and thou be not wholly lost.

And they set a time and a place and signed the writing as it had been with the cartouche of King Mau-Rees Uht-On. And they conveyed it to the youth G'il-il-And.

"And when G'il-il-And read what was there written, he tore his hair and girt himself in sackcloth and put ashes upon his head. And he went into the King's chamber. And he bowed three times before the king; and knocked his head upon the floor. And the floor was full of slivers withal. And King Mau-Rees Uht-On said unto him, What wouldst thou? And he answered and told all things in haste.

"And moreover he said, Oh, King, live for ever! I have sinned. But spare me and I will consort no more with that handmaiden in the hall of Timiell. Then the king took the papyrus and he waxed merry, and said:

"Oh, G'il-il-And, this papyrus is a zhozzie. Thy companions in my halls have written this that they might make thee even as an ass the son of a she ass. And by Pasht, I think they have done it.

"Then G'il-il-And gnashed his teeth and rent his raiment and went forth quickly from the presence of the king. And he knocked his head against the wall of the palace and cried out, saying,

"Before Osiris, I am a Mut!" And his companions answered and said unto him, Thou hast said it.

TRUTH SEEKER FINISHES IN COURT

Well Known University Men Appear on Serious Charges.

The Police Court was crowded at the opening of the session this morning, the charges against men well known in the highest walks of University life having drawn a large number of curious spectators.

The first to come up before the magistrate was Angus Dewar, charged with having been seen at the Star Theatre. Mr. Dewar pleaded guilty, but begged for mercy on the grounds that he had attended the performance solely in the interest of the Society for the Suppression of Vice, his purpose having been to give a series of lectures on what he saw.

The magistrate stated that he could accept no excuse for what he took to be the prisoner's morbid curiosity. He sentenced the prisoner to 30 days abstinence from all conversation with ladies.

H. G. Allen, president of the class of '09 was then called, charged with having been guilty of disorderly conduct. Witnesses deposed to having seen prisoner in conversation with a man in the Rotunda. He appeared to be agitated, and suddenly running his fingers through his hair, said, "Turn it all."

Prisoner pleaded guilty, but asked that he be allowed to go free this time, promising never to be guilty of such behaviour again. The magistrate, after giving the prisoner a severe calling down, allowed him to go on suspended sentence, this being a first offence.

With the most serious case of all that for less majesty, against Mr. H. Turner, the magistrate refused to deal. The prisoner was accused of having written a Limerick on President Falconer, and this the magistrate remarked, was so serious a charge that he would have to refer it to the Court of the Superintendent of Buildings and Grounds. Mr. Turner proffered 30c. bail, but it was refused.

W. J. Hoeking was charged with attempted mashing in the Hall. The prisoner denied the accusation with tears, and as the complainant failed to appear, the case was dismissed.

DEVICE LIMITS TELEPHONE TALKS

Wonderful Piece of Automatic Machinery for the Union.

Steps are being taken by the management of the Undergraduate Union for the installation of a piece of mechanism which will fill a want long felt by the habitues of the institution.

The device is nothing less than an Automatic Telephone Conversation Limiter, an invention lately perfected by Mr. Thomas Edison, working in collaboration with Mr. Jack Gardiner of University College.

The piece of mechanism, as its name implies is designed to secure the limitation of conversation over the telephone to a reasonable length, and to circumvent the man who babbles inanely for hours on end, while scores of eager candidates for the cabinet, tear their hair outside.

Much inconvenience has been caused at the Union by these long distance talkers in the past. The device will put an end to this.

The mechanism works by clock work. Three hours from the time of the taking down of the receiver, a small bell rings. If the talker takes no notice of this, the connections are automatically shut off five minutes later, and at the same moment a large cast-iron boot is projected with great force from the rear of the cabinet, the boot being so adjusted as to catch the talker in a spot where it will hurt, but do no serious injury.

If the speaker persists in remaining in the cabinet even after this, the floor which is hinged and works on a powerful spring, is released, throwing the occupant of the cabinet out of the door with considerable violence. At the same time the words "Don't let this man ever use your phone," are indelibly stamped on his forehead.

The first demonstration of the new device will take place on Feb. 30. Mr. Walter Curran, who holds the record for long-distance talking will occupy the cabinet. The public are invited to be present.

HARRISON TRIES CLASSICAL ROLE

Famous Actor Billed at Biolog as Petruchio—Other Attractions.

Next week's offering at the Biological Theatre is one that is bound to please the patrons of that institution, and will be a delightful change from the pseudo-English comedy which has held the boards for some time past. The attraction is Thomas Harrison in "The Taming of the Shrew." Mr. Harrison, it will be remembered, was starred in the farce "Latin," by Messrs. Milner and Johnston, last season.

His present play he first essayed in a private performance in Toronto some time ago, and proved so thoroughly successful in the role of Petruchio that he determined to follow up his triumph. His leading lady, it is interesting to note, is a former landlady. Mr. Harrison is supported by an able cast, including H. Chalmers Cruikshank, W. J. McCalla, John Lunney, Clair Moyer, Harriet Turner, and many others.

Following Mr. Harrison at the Biological is the eminent tragedian, Charles A. Lazenby in a mystic drama entitled, "We're Here Because We're Here." Other attractions promised at an early date are W. L. MacDonald in "The Doom of the Dishonest," or "The Stolen Silverware," a play from his own pen; Phat Forsythe in "The Seats of the Mighty"; Harry Senior, the noted impresario and pianist in a series of recitals; Roy L. Campbell in "The Camels are Coming".
